Sustainability
In Plastic Packaging

Plastic pollution is one of the most critical environmental challenges facing the planet. Virtually all plastic ever produced still exists, and almost one-third of plastic consumed each year directly pollutes our land, oceans, and food chain.

By now we're all aware of how plastic waste pollution has become a world-wide problem of monumental proportion… but where does plastic come from and why is it so central to our way of life? How is it used and what is being done to insure a more sustainable existence?

We're taking a deep dive into how our region is addressing the numerous challenges of transforming an industry that significantly impacts the health of our planet and ourselves. Join in on the webinar discussion with eight industry professionals and examine the different types of plastics used in packaging & the journey it takes from manufacturing through the end of life cycle. This is a FREE webinar.

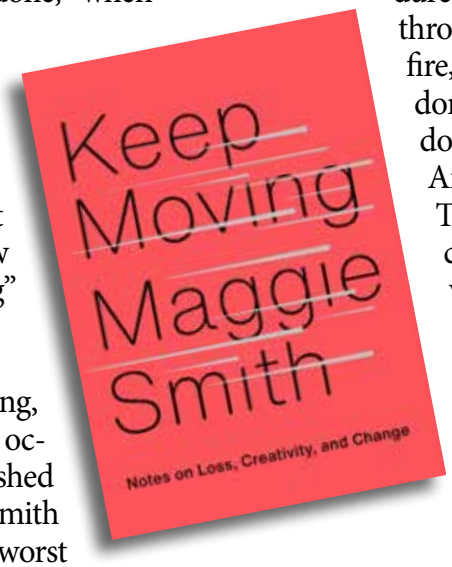
Keep Moving: Notes on Loss, Creativity, and Change

by Maggie Smith

Right foot, left foot, right foot.

That's the only way to move forward: one step at a time, even if it's a baby step. Yes, there are times when even that may seem impossible but when something's done, when someone's gone, or when the unthinkable has become reality, that's what you have to do. Right foot, left foot, right foot, as in the new book "Keep Moving" by Maggie Smith.



It's over.

You saw this coming, knew it was going to occur, though you thrashed and railed against it. Smith says that when the worst happened to her, she kept asking herself "What now?" and the answer was always "Keep moving."

Reminding herself then that the past can't be undone, she grieved, and made lists of things she was already doing – breathing, eating, blinking – then crossed them off to trick herself into thinking she was accomplishing something. She stopped claiming heartbreak because, despite occasional feelings to the contrary, her heart was beating just fine.

In the first part of Smith's book, Revision reminds us that change offers "an opportunity to make a new... life." In the second part, Resilience, Smith says we must take a lesson from lodgepole pinecones: they can't grow into tall trees unless they first endure a fire. If you've gone through metaphorical fire, "You survived; don't forget that, and don't diminish it."

And in the third part, Transformation, recall what happens when you take your hand out of a bucket of water: "'The water takes back the hand-shaped space.'" You can do the same thing with your life: don't live with what's gone; instead, take back your narrative by thinking about the future. You don't have to forget the past, but reframe it and "let go of the idea that you could have done anything differently." Be like a caterpillar, Smith says: cocoon, and then believe that you have entered darkness and are "coming out with wings."

Take a quick scan of "Keep Moving," and you'll notice that it's full of meme-worthy half-pages that might seem.... fluffy. There's not much inside this book at all, unless you need everything that you see.

And if that's the case, then this book is golden. Poet and author Maggie Smith's words ooze with compassion and self-care in a blend of short-short essays and one-to-three-line tiny posters that seem to invite readers to jot down down the sentiments and stick them on the bathroom mirror each day. Smith tells of her personal loss – a divorce – and how she survived, in what seems less like a book of steps and more like a three-season method that makes no demands on time. While it's aimed, for the most part, at loss of love and marriage here, the words can easily be subsumed by readers suffering other losses and missings.

Not everyone will want to read this book, and not everyone should, but if you're floundering and spinning and need a nudge forward, you know what to do. Find "Keep Moving" and start tomorrow on the right foot. ▪

CASE NUMBER: 20CV01715
NOTICE TO DEFENDANT:
TERRY BRUCE YANCY, AN INDIVIDUAL, AND DOES 1-10, INCLUSIVE.
YOU ARE BEING SUED BY PLAINTIFF :
JUDY GRYSTAR
NOTICE! You have been sued. The court may decide against you without your being heard unless you respond within 30 days. Read the information below.
You have 30 CALENDAR DAYS after this summons and legal papers are served on you to file a written response at this court and have a copy served on the plaintiff. A letter or phone call will not protect you. Your written response must be in proper legal form if you want the court to hear your case. There may be a court form that you can use for your response. You can find these court forms and more information at the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), your county law library, or the courthouse nearest you. If you cannot pay the filing fee, ask the court clerk for a fee waiver form. If you do not file your response on time, you may lose the case by default, and your wages, money, and property may be taken without further warning from the court.
There are other legal requirements. You may want to call an attorney right away. If you do not know an attorney, you may want to call an attorney referral service. If you cannot afford an attorney, you may be eligible for free legal services from a nonprofit legal services program. You can locate these nonprofit groups at the California Legal Services Web site (www.lawhelpcalifornia.org), the California Courts Online Self-Help Center (www.courtinfo.ca.gov/selfhelp), or by contacting your local court or county bar association. NOTE: The court has a statutory lien for waived fees and costs on any settlement or arbitration award of $10,000 or more in a civil case. The court's lien must be paid before the court will dismiss the case.
